HRH Prince Philip will present three Edinburgh University academics with awards at a special dinner in the Palace of Holyroodhouse on Monday.

The Duke of Edinburgh, who is the ancient university's chancellor, will present the teaching staff with their Chancellor's Awards.

The Chancellor's Awards recognise innovation and personal dedication that benefits society.

Dr Simon Bates, of the School of Physics, Professor Donald MacKenzie, of the School of Political and Social Studies, and Professor Stuart West, of the School of Biological Sciences, have all been recognised.
